Oh, let me tell you about my first trip to London with my cousin Sara which took place 4 years ago.

I was (excited – exciting – excitement) because I only flew to few touristy cities in my home country and it would be the first time I would be (boarding – aboard – abroad). Did you know that Sara was (afraid – proud - fond) of flying ? Well, when we got to the airport Sara looked nervous and wasn't keen on going any (far – further – furthest) while we were going through the passport control. Just then, a voice announced that our flight to England was cancelled.

(Unless – Unlike – Although) Sarah who was glad because she was too frightened to take that plane, I was disappointed. So, we all went home. Since then, I felt the urge to visit London. So, last year I decided to make it. There, I met Giselle, a French tourist, and became close friends. I'm planning to visit her in France next year. I hope I (could – can – will be able to) save enough for such a once-in-a-lifetime trip.

When I was a kid, I always dreamt of flying to New York City to travel over the Big apple. More than forty one foreign and domestic tourists visit New York per year to explore many historical and religious sites like Times Square, Broadway, Bronx zoo, Brooklyn Bridge, Statue of Liberty, Metropolitan Art museum and One World Trade Center which is the highest sky craper in New York City. Attractions in New York include religious events such as Thanksgiving at the Maeses Center in Greenwich Village, free shows and ice skating at the Central Park and film festival as the Tribeca Film Festival .The city earned the nickname of the city that never sleeps because it is full of life and there is always something going on somewhere. It means any time, day or night, that you go outside, lights are on, people are moving around, horns are honking, music is wafting in from somewhere and some shops, restaurants, pubs, discos and lounges are open all night long. Of course everyone sleeps, but not all at the same time, so there is always hustle and bustle. If someone wants to experience a breath taking view and see New York Skyline, he or she needs to take a New York City helicopter tour or use the Top Deck observatory on the one hundred and second floor of the Empire state building which offers you a golden opportunity to see the entire length of Manhattan and all of New York City's landmarks, from the Statue of Liberty to Central Park and far beyond. I hope one day my dream of spending even one day in New York will come true.
